Commuter shoplifters

Thieves come from all over to steal out of E.C. Plaza stores

Brenda Dawson
The Journal

EL CERRITO — The Plaza is attracting out-of-town shoplifters who travel from as far away as Concord and Fairfield to prey on the open shopping mall, according to the El Cerrito Police Department.

A lot more people that don't live here than do live here shoplift at the Plaza," said Detective Wayne Mann.

Police arrest five to seven Plaza shoplifters a week, he said.

Merchants cite a number of reasons the Plaza draws shoplifters from other areas. At the top of their list is the mall's design, which they say gives thieves to slip away undetected.

"It's easy to get away without getting caught because it's easy to just walk out, jump in a waiting car and make a quick getaway down San Pablo (Avenue)," said Ron Hughes, manager of Longs Drug Store.

Besides the open layout of the Plaza, individual store design contributes to the problem, according to Plaza Security Chief David Urrutia. Longs Drug Store, F.W. Woolworth Co., Emporium-Capwell and some of the other Plaza stores stretch from the parking lot to the mall courtyard and have more than one entrance.

This makes it difficult for merchants to keep track of people entering and leaving the stores. Shoplifters can stroll in one door, grab merchandise and leave quickly through another door

'In an effort to counter ... rip-and-run strategies, the Plaza's three-man security team tries to keep a high profile' without arousing suspicions, Urrutia said.

In an effort to counter these rip-and-run and stealth strategies, the Plaza's three-man security team tries to keep a high profile, regularly patrolling sidewalks and asking drivers to move their cars away from curbs.

"We try to be highly visible to deter people from committing crimes," Urrutia said.

enough about shoplifting to have its own security team. According to manager Hughes, the store doesn't rely on Plaza security because it would keep them too busy.

While Hughes refused to give the average number of shoplifters apprehended per week in Longs, he did say the store's security force stays busy and that he believes not every shoplifter is caught.

Albany sewer rates boosted 17 percent

By Teri DeLoache
The Journal

ALBANY — The City Council voted 4-1 Monday to approve a 17 percent hike in sewer service rates for East Bay Municipal Utility District customers.

Although rates increased 15 percent last year, Public Works Director Ron Lefler said charges must go up even more this year if the city hopes to complete a 20-year sewer replacement project as ordered by the state Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The Water Quality Control Board ordered EBMUD and its customers to upgrade existing sewer systems to reduce seepage into the bay. The city faces heavy fines if it fails to comply with the order.

The project is expected to cost Albany $1 million a year. For the first two years of the project, state and federal grants covered half of the cost. However, those funds are no longer available so the city must increase sewer service rates to fund the project.

"An increase of over 15 percent is necessary if we are going to meet our goals," Lefler told the council. "Sewers deteriorate constantly and costs generally have a tendency only to go up. Right now construction costs are stable so it's a good time to do it."

While most council members agreed with Lefler's arguments for staying on schedule, Councilmember Robert Nichols did not. He urged the city to refrain from increasing the rates and instead delay the project to keep costs down for Albany customers and perhaps encourage EBMUD to help pay for the work.

"I think it's inappropriate that we're being asked to foot the whole bill," he said. "I think the Opening doors to local art scene

Ambitious studio tour unearths a lode of talent in Albany

By Phyllis Lyon
The Journal

ALBANY — A tour of artists' studios in Albany last weekend revealed a lot of unexpected talent and originality in painting, drawing, photography, papier mache and other media. Pro Arts, a non-profit organization of local Bay artists, sponsored the Open Studios exhibition and art sale. Albany artists who opened their studios and demonstrated their secrets to the public. Judith Corning. In the new studio behind her home, Corning exhibited egg tempera paintings, etchings and carbon pencil drawings. The long, narrow drawings, inspired, she said by Asian scrolls, are photographic representations of the caves and canyons of the Pinnacles National Monument and the Marble Mountain Alps of Northern California. One of the artist's pencil drawings won a first award at the California Art Fair in 1988. Corning has a master of fine arts degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts and a teaching credential from San Francisco State University. In addition to her work as an artist, she is a painting instructor at the Piedmont Adult School and teaches piano.

She exhibits at the Weir Gallery on Solano Avenue and galleries in San Francisco, Richmond and Little Rock, Arkansas. Corning's studio is at 960 Ventura Ave.

Roy Scott. As a master of the art of papier mache, Scott's garage-studio was hung with hot air balloon sculptures in different stages of completion demonstrating the creative process.

Scott has also created papier mache puppets, including a complete circus which he and his son use to perform, and toys and masks.

Scott said, however, that he considers himself primarily a painter. His acrylic on paper paintings of theatrical figures and muted landscapes were also on exhibit.

Scott is artist-in-residence at the Richmond schools teaching children the art of puppetry. The program is supported by a grant from the California Arts Council.

He is a graduate of the California College of Arts and Crafts and exhibits at Plate and Palette International in Berkeley and galleries in Sacramento and Santa Fe, New Mexico. Scott's studio is at 1212 Dartmouth St.

Patricia Violette McGaw. Acrylic figure paintings in tropical colors suggesting Gauguin were on exhibit in McGaw's cathedral ceilinged studio. McGaw, best known until recently for her work in fibers and weaving, has a degree in painting from the California College of Arts and Crafts.

She is the gallery director at the Arts and Crafts Cooperative, Inc., in Berkeley, where she has initiated a series of exhibitions in a variety of media. She also teaches art classes on Thursday evenings. Her studio is at 1022 Ventura Ave.

Charles Klein. In his attic studio and darkroom, Klein explained the dramatic instants he hopes to capture in his photographs.

His black and white photos, including a bird in flight in Central Park in New York, the pool at the Oakland Museum, shoppers at a mall, a boat beached in the fog near Golden Gate Fields and sunflowers in his neighbor's yard, emphasize human feeling within a geometric composition. Stein's studio is at 975 Stannage Ave.

Joan Champion. A graphic artist as well as a painter, Champion exhibited high-definition watercolors in abstract designs, pointillist figures and pen and ink with watercolor paintings of birds, an ibis, sandpipers and a red bill goose.

Champion's studio is at 923 Polk St.

Margery Cohen. Cohen paints hard-edged, brilliantly colored figures in tempera. Her exhibit was accompanied by two violins. Cohen's studio is at 760B Pierce St.

The Open Studios exhibition continues next weekend with tours of studios south of MacArthur Boulevard in Oakland and Alameda.

Tour maps are available and an exhibition of the work of member artists on the tour can be seen at the Pro Arts Gallery, 1920 Union St., Oakland, through June 18. For information call 763-7880.

Residents oppose E.C. halfway house

By Brenda Dawson
The Journal

EL CERRITO — Residents of Harper Street are unhappy with a new neighbor and they let the City Council know it Monday night.

More than 50 people packed the council chambers to request that a drug recovery halfway house be forced to move from their neighborhood.

New Bridge Foundation, a Berkeley-based rehabilitation program, rented the house at 2020 Harper St. in April to use as a "satellite" residence for recovering drug abusers. Four people currently live in the home.

Carrie Richardson, a spokesperson for the neighborhood group opposed to the home, contends that because New Bridge has no license, it is operating illegally and should be shut down.

New Bridge, however, claims the halfway house only needs a license if more than six people occupy the house.

"We called El Cerrito zoning and planning and they advised us we don't need (a license); they said we're in compliance," Peter Budlong, New Bridge's director of admissions and outreach, said before the meeting.

According to Richardson, Harper Street is an inappropriate location for a rehabilitation facility because the street "currently suffers from an over-concentration of residential care facilities."

There are two day care homes and a small mental health facility on the street.

Although the council postponed a decision until the next meeting, Mayor Jean Siri said she is concerned that "none of us was aware of the concentration (of care facilities) in your neighborhood."

The group also claims a

County restricts plastics

Recycling plan OK'd

Bay City News

The Contra Costa Board of Supervisors last week unanimously approved a plan to establish recycling programs for discarded plastics and discourage the use of hard-to-recycle plastic products.

The board directed the county counsel to draw up an ordinance prohibiting the use, sale or production of polystyrene foam containers and packing materials that are manufactured with chlorofluorocarbon compounds, which are believed to deplete the earth's ozone layer.

The ban would be effective only in the unincorporated areas of the county but the supervisors directed county staff to encourage the county's 18 cities to enact similar ordinances banning plastics manufactured with chlorofluorocarbons.

The board also directed county staff to work with plastic industry representatives and recyclers to develop plans for a waste plastics recycling program for the entire county with a tentative target day of December 31, 1990.

County officials will encourage city councils to follow the supervisors' lead and require curbside recycling programs to pick up plastics along with the glass, aluminum and paper items they now collect.

The board also asked county staff to come up with specific plans to implement other plastics reduction and recycling goals.

Among the goals are an enforcement and education program to prevent the disposal of soiled plastic-lined diapers with household trash, a proposal to switch to the use of cloth diapers at Merrieth Memorial Hospital, a public education program on plastics recycling and an analysis of the county's waste stream to find out the amounts and varieties of plastic it contains.

The board plans to ask the state legislature to give cities and counties the authority to institute a "product disposal charge" on all plastic containers and packaging materials at the point of sale. The disposal charges would be placed in a fund to promote county recycling activities.

The board directed the community development director to identify plastic products that are difficult to recycle and set a deadline by which the sale and use of those products would be phased out.

I LEFT MY HEART IN SANSAN: There is only one true megalopolis in the U.S., according to a Census Bureau analyst, a stretch called Bowwash, the corridor from Boston to Washington, D.C.

(A megalopolis is an urban area in which several large cities and suburbs adjoin each other. By Census Bureau standards, such a region has a population in excess of 10 million.)

Brace yourself. Another potential megalopolis, says a blurb in USA Today, is Sansan — San Diego to San Francisco.

If it does come to pass, the population center would figure to be somewhere in the metropolitan Fresno area, which would make the whole notion less likely.

Actually, the Census Bureau's hot pick for the next megalopolis is San Diego to Los Angeles, which we thought had already come to pass.

FORGET WHAT'S TO COME, look at the state of things here now. There are 1,391,400 licensed drivers in Alameda and Contra Costa counties, according to (rounded-off) DMV figures, and for some inexplicable reason most of them find their way onto the Eastshore on weekdays.

FREE PLUG OF THE WEEK: If you are one of the almost 1.4 million drivers mentioned above and you're looking for a distinctive set of wheels to make you stand out in the traffic jam, how 'bout an Edsel?

A green, 1959 Edsel Ranger has been parked on Marin Avenue with For Sale signs in the window (no asking price given).

THE MOOD AT HAPPY PRODUCE is less than jolly over the prospect of parking meters on the Albany portion of Solano Avenue.

A "SAY NO TO PARKING METERS" placard is in the store window, urging those opposing meters to attend the June 27 public hearing on the issue (7 p.m. at the Albany High School Little Theatre, for both of you out there who haven't heard).

The placard, prepared by a group called the Albany Ad Hoc Committee, P.O. Box 1084, El Cerrito, has popped up in a few other windows on the avenue as well. Examiner columnist John C. Dvorak, who regards parking meters with the same disdain that he does the city of Berkeley, would be proud.

FREE PLUG NO. 2: Suppose you've found a (non-metered) parking space in Albany and you have your spouse stand in it while you run out to buy a car. (And suppose that Edsel on Marin has found a buyer.) Would a Chevy do?

On the Avenue

By Chris Treadway

What was formerly James Chevrolet in Albany has reopened as Rod Black Chevrolet. The building had been empty for some time while toxics found on the site were cleaned up.

Ironically, the Albany Chevy outlet opened at almost the same time that Reggie Jackson Chevrolet in Berkeley closed its doors. Our research staff has been unable to determine who Black played baseball for or what his batting record was in October.

IN CASE YOU COULDN'T TELL, the campaign for the 1990 California gubernatorial elections is already under way and Dianne Feinstein is stumping the obligatory stops.

The former San Francisco mayor, who is challenging state Attorney General John Van De Kamp for the Democratic nomination, was scheduled to give the keynote address yesterday at the Women's Forum of Contra Costa County's fifth annual luncheon. Non-members of the forum were asked to pony up $30 each to hear Lady Di.

IF U CN RD THS you could have a career with the Albany police force! Condensed report from the Albany blotter (and we're not making it up): "Man approached RO's IFO APD. He was found to be HBD and parked IFO APD. Was given FSTs, but wasn't 647FPC."

Something happened here, and we're darned if we know what it is. Yo, Chief Murdo, think you can have the lab decipher it for us?

THE EAST SIDE STORY: The Tribune's distribution center on Kearney Street in El Cerrito is something of a congregating spot for errant shopping carts. Handy for moving bundles of papers around, but illegal just the same.

THE TASK OF WRITING this column each week has taken its toll and On the Avenue will be off the next two weeks. Try to make do and in the meantime, keep that card and letter coming in.

Ode to Hamlet Syndrome sufferers

Editor:

In response to the book review of The Hamlet Syndrome that appeared in the May 25 edition of your paper, I am enclosing a poem I wrote 10 years ago.

O, Hamlet

O, Hamlet, you are my brother, floundering between "is" and "seems," bounded by both nutshell and bad dreams.

Questioning "To be or not to be" when that is NOT the question —

HOW to be is the unblunt point, living as we do, in times disjoint.

To swamp yourself in grave dejection, lamenting the limits of natural selection, beating the air with an empty hand —

Is precisely to misunderstand. But still, I share your reluctance to garden in this world of weeds.

I also yearn for the reward of tending more hybrid seeds — To live in the world for my own reasons.

But that is not to be...

We all emerge in the middle of on-going history.

You, too, Hamlet.

There never was and never will be an amulet to get us through whatever our times without recourse to action.

To be IS to do —

Albany's Curbside Bandits

Straight into Solano, the Alley of Taxation, strode the Intrepid Two Hundred. Not willing to be plundered, they tore protocol asunder. Their mission was not to be taxed and to die. Their mission was to question, who profits and why. To their right and to their left grow scraggly trees, Blocking the light and the view with their ugly knobby knees.

To be replaced with bandits on one leg. Whose only purpose will be quarters to beg. When each street is equipt with one legged bandit. Will Albany residents be able to stand it?

Examiner column full of 'cheap shots'

Editor:

John C. Dvorak's column (San Francisco Examiner), June 2, should have been headed the "National Enquirerizing of the Examiner," full as it was of misstatements and cheap shots — empty as it was of fact, logic or reason. Blue disks in Paris — well, la-dee-da.

The Albany City Council (out of arrogance and spite?) has held public hearings and tried for two years to solve the problem of decay and rot in Albany's end of Solano Avenue. True, it's a great place for you're in the market for a psychiatrist. If you're around to have your title searched, this is the place.

The parking meters are for small, city parking lots around town to encourage stores, to liven the place up. Dvorak's sleepy town doesn't pay for anything. The just come out of the woods to scream about what not.

Sitting up there on the master of all he surveys, got his, Dvorak is out of his archaic you-can't-fight-hall blather.

And that goes for Cleveland, too.

Class of '69 plans September reunion

EL CERRITO — The 1969 graduating class of El Cerrito High School will hold its 20-year reunion Sept. 30. The event will take place at the Turf Club at Golden Gate Fields in Albany. Final plans for entertainment are still being formalized. The evening will include dinner and dancing.

The reunion committee is trying to contact all members of the class. One letter has already been sent to class members. Any 1969 graduate who has not received a notice can write to ECHS Class of '69 Reunion, 45 William Dr., Moraga 94556 or call Malcolm and Casey Sproul at 376-8945; Jan Bradford Rohde at 820-4058;

Viki Kubokawa at 284-7022; Dennis Chuning at 224-4893.

El Cerrito High may be called for a current list of numbers of reunion organizers. Classmates who have not been reached are urged to contact the committee if they know missing class members.

Police Report

Man seen dancing with signal box — badly

ALBANY The following is a partial account of crimes and incidences occurring recently according to police reports.

• An owner of a San Pablo Avenue pizza place said he received a $37 check that bounced. He went to the customer's house in Richmond to get the money and was told to come back later. When he returned, a man threatened him with a baseball bat.

• Albany Bowl reported June 6 that a group of men brought beer into the pool room and refused to leave. Police arrived and the men left without incident.

• A caller told police that a 12-year-old neighbor on Kains Avenue fell out of a tree and hit his head. The Fire Department responded and recommended the boy be taken to the hospital. The boy's father refused, saying he would seek a doctor if necessary.

• A 67-year-old Oakland man was seen walking on the shoulder of I-80 June 6. He was alert, according to police, but could not give his address. He told officers he had been wandering around for a couple of days.

• A Portland Avenue woman reported June 6 that someone put a piece of pizza and a pair of false teeth on the hood of her car.

• Police were called about a domestic dispute June 5. When officers arrived, the couple was having an argument about returning to Iran now that the Ayatollah Khomeini is dead. The husband said he owns several businesses in Iran and had only intended to stay in the United States for one year. Now, four years later, his wife is trying to persuade him to stay for good. He said that's foolish the only jobs he can get in the U.S. are low-paying. Police advised them to settle the matter peacefully.

• A 26-year-old El Cerrito man was seen "dancing with a signal control box" at the corner of Marin and San Pablo avenues June 3. He was arrested and released when sober.

• A gas station manager reported June 2 that an employee she had just fired was reacting badly. The manager called the woman's mother to come get her. In the meantime, the ex-employee became irrational and started poking at her own eyes.

El Cerritans celebrate 50th anniversary

EL CERRITO — Mary Ruth and Edwin Powell of El Cerrito recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary dinner reception with more than 150 relatives and friends.

Mary Ruth Powell was a teacher and counselor in the Oakland Unified School District for 27 years.

Edwin Powell served more than three years in the United States Army and as an interior decorator for the Oakland Army Base for 30 years.

Both retired in 1973. After their retirement they enjoyed traveling around the world.

terminating nooks and crannies where shoplifters can hide from surveillance. Renovation plans also include building a central checkout area that all customers would have to pass before leaving the store, said Hughes.

Emporium-Capwell management refused to discuss theft with the Journal, citing store policy. The department store, however, does have its own security force to combat shoplifting.

According to Detective Wayne Llanos, Emporium-Capwell asks El Cerrito police to arrest alleged shoplifters there three to five times a week.

"And that's a conservative estimate," he said. "I've been on when we've taken three out of Emporium's in a night."

Lenora Brown, who has worked for Woolworth 16 years, said she believes people travel to the Plaza to shoplift because the mall appears so placid that they feel no one is aware of them.

"They dress nice and figure they can just blend in," she said.

While women make up the majority of shoplifters at Longs Drug Store, according to Hughes, men get caught as frequently as women at Woolworth, said Brown.

"And they come in all colors, all creeds," she added.

Contrary to common belief that most shoplifters are teenagers, the average Plaza shoplifter is between 20 and 30 years old, according to Security Chief Urrutia.

"The only problems I have with teens is after hours when they spray-paint the sidewalk. Because the city of El Cerrito doesn't have any other central place to hang around, the kids come here," he said. "They may be loud but they take care of the Plaza."

Security experts believe El Cerrito Plaza's open design attracts shoplifters who can rip off a store and slip away undetected. It's easy to get away without getting caught because it's easy to just walk out, jump in a waiting car and make a quick getaway down San Pablo," said Ron Hughes of Longs Drugs

Contra Costa County to start exporting garbage

City News

The operators of Alameda County's Altamont landfill have signed an agreement that could clear the way for the export of Contra Costa County garbage to the landfill in about six months, according to an Alameda County planning official.

Assistant Planning Director Betty Croly said Oakland Scavenger Co. representatives recently agreed to accept conditions on the transport of Contra Costa trash to its Altamont dump, including the use of a controversial garbage transfer station in Martinez.

If the agreement passes a multi-level approval process involving local and state agencies, it will permit the Altamont landfill to accept up to 1,100 tons per week-day of Contra Costa garbage for a two-year period.

Contra Costa County community development manager Charles Zahn called the agreement "a major step" but said Altamont will not be able to absorb all the central county waste now flowing to the Acme landfill, which is approaching capacity.

Zahn said negotiations are continuing on an export agreement with Solano County.

The operators of another dump six miles from the Altamont landfill also plan to ask Alameda County for permission to accept 1,000 tons of Contra Costa garbage for a two-year term.

Tim Cox, the district manager for Browning Ferris Industries' landfill at 4001 North Vasco Rd., said the company filed a letter of intent with Alameda County on May 9 and plans to file its application for the dumping permit in about two weeks.

Contra Costa County solid waste manager Sara Hoffman said, "The county is eager to pursue every possible option to ensure adequate capacity for the county's waste stream until a permanent landfill can be constructed in the county."

Zahn said officials from Alameda and Contra Costa counties had agreed to the terms of the garbage export plan at Altamont over four months ago but the use of the Martinez transfer station was a sticking point for its operator, Oakland Scavenger.

Oakland Scavenger is a subsidiary of Waste Management of North America, Inc., which also owns a trash hauling business involved in a fee dispute with Acme Fill Corp., the owners of the transfer station.

Waste Management subsidiary Valley Waste Management collects household trash from cities in south and central Contra Costa County and hauls it for disposal to the Acme landfill in Martinez.

Acme imposed an 87 percent fee increase on haulers in February, saying the company needed to cover the costs of the landfill's impending closure.

Zahn said Valley Waste Management was unable to pass Acme's increase through to its municipal ratepayers. At that point, Oakland Scavenger began to resist the requirement that haulers take their trash to Acme's new transfer station for consolidation into larger trucks which would then go to Altamont.

Both Alameda and Contra Costa counties turned down Oakland Scavenger's request that some trash from southern Contra Costa County be permitted to go directly to the Altamont landfill instead of going up Interstate 680 to the transfer station and back down again.

Consolidation of small truckloads into larger trucks at the transfer station will avoid excessive traffic into Alameda County and will provide a place where trash can be sorted and recycled, Zahn said.

The Albany Chamber of Commerce received a $50 donation for the flag fund from Albany American Legion Post 292. Others wishing to donate to keep the American flag flying at the Buchanan Street freeway approach can mail contributions to the chamber office at 1108 Solano Ave.

Gordon passes the gavel

Bob Gordon, elected to the chamber board of directors last month, will end his term as president of the Albany Rotary Club. The club has been a chamber member since 1976.

An accomplished musician, Gordon played the viola for both the Oakland and San Francisco symphonies. He is a member of a string quartet that has been playing together for 42 years.

He owns Gordon's Piano Shop on Solano Avenue, tuning pianos every morning and opening the shop for sales in the afternoon. Piano tuning and repairing are done in homes; restoration is done in the shop.

Liability reform

The California Chamber of Commerce sponsored a product liability reform bill heard by the Senate Judiciary Committee on May 23.

The bill proposes a state-of-the-art defense to protect manufacturers from lawsuits when their products were the best they could be at the time they were produced.

Alister McAlister spoke in support of the measure which he called a modest reform to improve the climate for the manufacturing industry in California.

The bill was opposed by the California Trial Lawyers Association. The subject matter of the bill was referred to the Joint Study Committee on Tort Reform for research during the recess. This can be reconsidered in next year's session.

Just around the corner

Plans for the July Fourth celebration at Memorial Park are moving ahead with additional participants each week adding to the festivities.

In addition to bingo games, music, sales of various means, baseball games, there will be a solemn moment with the raising of the POW-MIA flag at 11:30 a.m. The flag will be placed below the American flag that flies all day courtesy of American Legion Post 292.

Booklet donations accepted

Jewel Okawachi (D&S Composing), representative on Albany's Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention Council, is extending the deadline for donations toward the prevention booklet. The booklet is to be distributed to all Albany students in the fall. A $25 donation buys a business card ad in the booklet.

All donations will be accepted at the chamber office. Checks should be made out to the Albany School District. Donations have been received from NTT Travel, Lompa Printing, D&S Composing, Luoma Photography, Sonja Haney Farmers Insurance, Jay Sordea OMDCA, Attorney William Johns, Royal Cafe, Arrow Glass Company, SOS Temporary Personnel, Ed Bernstein State Farm Insurance, Fred Sierra Business Service, Wild Wools, Norm Williams Realty, The Avenue Travel, K&S Company, Lisa Lajala and the Claremont Diner.

Mail service moves

Albany Mail Service has moved its office across the street to 1060 Solano Ave. Owner Esther Hodges says the hours and services remain the same.

Little League T-shirts

The chamber office is selling Albany sweatshirts and T-shirts for the Albany Little League.

A new bridge design will be printed on the 1989-90 shirts. They will also be sold July 4 at Memorial Park. Red and white Albany caps are available at the office for $5.

When regular child care is not enough

'Customized care' may be the answer

By Tina Goldberg
Special to The Journal

ALBANY — Two-year-old Arthur and his playmates, Talia and Richard, babble and sing cheerfully to each other as they mold pieces of Play-Doh in Richard's kitchen. The three toddlers have the divided attention of their sitter, Wei Ho, who molds clay with one child as she talks to a second infant and washes the face of a third.

Wei Ho runs a sort of daycare center — but one designed by the children's parents. A year and a half ago Albany residents Cynthia Ivy and George Omura enrolled their son Arthur in a babysitting share, a cooperative in which several families hire a babysitter to take care of their children while they go to work.

The sitter watches Arthur and two other children, rotating the daycare center among the toddlers' Albany, Berkeley and El Cerrito homes. Each family pays the sitter separately an agreed rate. The families jointly organize the share to meet the children's needs.

Although shares have become popular among two-income couples with young children, Cynthia Ivy found that many people she met had questions about the babysitting cooperative. Ivy decided to write the booklet Sharebook to explain to parents how to start and run their own shares.

"People would say to me that (a share) was a great idea," Ivy said. "I wrote the book on a whim, mostly to help other people. It's a great alternative to daycare."

In her booklet Ivy highlights and explains the major details of organizing a babysitting share, including finding a family and sitter and arranging pay and sick leave. She emphasizes throughout Sharebook that a babysitting share is a business arrangement and that share members should negotiate their needs in a contract.

"A share could be the answer to your problems," Ivy states in the first chapter. "This is child care over which you have control. This is customized child care, as you want it, when you want it, where you want it."

Ivy explained that a share is ideal for children under 3 years old who are often too young for daycare centers.

"And with so many women who have to go to work when the children are tiny, a share is a good option," she added.

A share of two to four children is large enough to provide the toddlers with playmates while being small enough to allow the sitter flexibility in planning activities.

"I wanted my child to be able to go places," Ivy explained. "When you go to the park you can pretty much pick out the share sitters — they have two kids or more with them."

Arthur's sitter, Wei Ho, said that she prefers share sitting to watching one child because the pay is more consistent and the job duties are flexible.

"It's fun, actually," she said. "I much prefer it because the variety is great. It's not the same routine every day. The kids have a great variety of friends." She confided that the children are better when their mothers are not around.

Although Wei Ho's arrangement with sharemembers is strictly business, Ivy said the sitter is treated as an extended member of the family. Parents fill in for her when she is sick and bring her food and other treats. Wei Ho's contract includes paid vacation, holidays and sick leave — a high standard for babysitting contracts, according to Ivy.

"A good sitter can probably find work anywhere," Ivy said. "A parent has to find a family that values children and the services the sitter is giving."

Ivy said she does not know how common babysitting shares are in other regions and countries but that Bay Area families are progressive in adopting the cooperative arrangement.

Oakland schoolteacher Diedre Shea found a babysitting share the perfect arrangement for both her work schedule and her daughter Talia.

"I'm a teacher and I needed the hours to cover when I was working," Shea said. "I wanted my little girl to have interaction with another child."

"I like to play at the school," Talia said shyly. "I like my babysitter."

Money Matters

By Jaime T. Fukumae

Special to The Journal

How would you react if you could be wealthy by following a few simple guidelines on managing your money? You'd be interested, right? Well, creating wealth is easier than you might think.

Take a minute and calculate how much you'll earn during your working life. Let's say you earn $35,000 a year over 40 years — that's $1.4 million dollars. By consistently saving 10 percent of your salary and getting a modest 7 percent return, you could retire with a nest egg of almost $700,000.

The hard part, of course, is finding the money to put into savings. The first step is to look at how you spend your money, and then try to trim enough to come up with the 10 percent savings.

Perhaps you can cut back by taking your lunch to work or riding the bus, eating out less often, making your old car last another year, buying fewer clothes, looking for sales or taking scaled-down vacations.

If you're already in debt, you might have to start your "savings plan" by getting back on track. Try to consolidate your high interest credit card debts into one lower-interest bank loan. Then get off the credit card cycle by not buying new items until you've paid for the old. Save for large purchases and pay cash rather than spending more on interest.

If your annual pay raises exceed inflation, you have a source of money for savings. You should be able to do it without reducing your lifestyle. Commit to putting a portion of all future pay raises into your savings program.

Once you've found a way to save, be sure to pay yourself first by having your savings taken out of your paycheck or writing the first check each month to your savings account.

Black Rep's 'Ceremonies' an exercise gritty realism

Stage

Ceremonies in Dark Old Men plays until July 1 at Black Repertory Group's Berkeley theater. Call 652-2120 for information.

By Rachel LePell
Special to The Journal

Screamin' and hollerin' their way to a better life, a Harlem family battles it out in Ceremonies in Dark Old Men, now playing at Black Repertory Group.

Witnessing the Parker family rip at each other for almost three hours is dramatic, but also a little tiresome.

Black Repertory Group closes its 24th season with this domestic tragedy that explores the Parker family's desperate effort to pull themselves out of a situation "that just ain't right."

The play begins with Parker (Malcolm Smith) sitting silently in his single barber's chair, reading an old newspaper. We are aware immediately that Parker is waiting for something, or someone, to take him away from this solitude.

Finally, his buddy Jenkins (Frederic Luckett) arrives and the pair begins a traditional old men's ceremony — a game of checkers. For a few moments, at least, it's peace at home.

Adele Parker (Rhoda Denny George) begrudgingly works a menial job to support her father and two brothers, whom she constantly abuses for not pulling their weight. Parker claims with innocence, "I don't know how to work," and each son has his excuse, too.

Theo (Eric Davenport) is the rebellious son with a myriad of ambitions, none of which have been successful. Bobby, (Kelvin Luster) claims, "I ain't no dumbell, I'm a thief," and gets by with occasional robberies for some extra cash.

Adele reproaches her men again and again, threatening to leave them or to kick them out of the house, which has been set up as Parker's barber shop even though he has never cut a head of hair in his life.

Ignorant and gullible, Theo enthusiastically takes up with a slick, cool cat named Blue Haven (Earl Crudup).

Blue struts about the stage in flashy, sexy garb, as the audience watches with intense curiosity and attraction. He is the mystery man,

Ballet's schedule for fall

The Oakland Ballet has announced its 1989 season will feature a dance not seen since 1924.

Originally, "Le Train Bleu" included a collaboration of some of the great artists of the day — choreography by Bronislava Nijinska, libretto by Jean Cocteau, front curtain by Pablo Picasso and fashion design by Coco Chanel.

Its American premiere will be in Oakland Nov. 10 and run through Nov. 12 in the final repertory performances of the season.

On Sept. 15 to 17, the company will perform "Inconsequential, The Awakening and the Pursuit of Happiness" at the Paramount Theater.

On Oct. 6 to 8, Gypsy, Sibelius and another ballet to be announced will be performed at the Paramount.

The third program is scheduled to be held at Zellerbach Hall at the University of California at Berkeley where the performances will be "Synergies," "Carnival D'Aix" and "Les Noces."

The season will end at the Paramount with the Nov. 10 to 12 performances of "Le Train Bleu," "Jardin Aux Lilas" and "Les Biches."

All repertory performances are Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoons at 2.

The popular Nutcracker will also be performed at the Paramount during the holiday season.

The season favorite has 2 p.m. matinees set for Dec. 9, 10, 14, 17, 20, 21, 22 and 23. Performances for 8 p.m. have been scheduled for Dec. 9, 15, 16, 22 and 23.

out of step with the others. He offers a possible salvation from the hellish poverty that envelops the Parkers.

Parker resists the idea, seemingly wise to a slick salesman's pitch. The scene in which Blue proposes his get-rich-quick scheme will be familiar to anyone who has suffered through a salesman's spiel. It is complete with a colorful graph that has no meaning whatsoever.

Will he (Parker), or will he not buy into a chance that might change his life? And what will the price be?

The production here, under the direction of Winston Williams, is uneven. It has an overall quality, but it lacks the attention to detail to give it needed polish. It also has some glorious moments, thanks to some terrific acting.

Malcolm Smith, as Parker, shines. He is warm and charming one moment, frustrating and stubborn the next. He has such a natural grace on stage, he is the only one in the cast who appears to actually live in that house.

When he talks about the past, whether it's fact or fiction, he becomes animated — an old man who glorifies and laments "better days." We are half amused, half saddened.

One of his strongest moments is his tale about the chain gang — he enjoys it, and so do we.

Because he gets us laughing and allows us to see his warmer, gentler self, he is equally compelling when he turns with conviction and anger. We buy both sides of this man, and we care.

Also intriguing is Earl Crudup as Blue Haven. As sinister and frightening as Parker is loveable, this guy has a tough job making us see him as a whole man. The task is made easier by some fine writing by Lonnie Elder III (whose name, by the way, is very hard to find in the program).

Blue has some speeches about his own hardships that tug the heartstrings and make his behavior understandable, if not excusable. This is countered by his fierce temper and unpredictable nature. He is dangerous, like a wounded animal.

Bobby (Kelvin Luster) has a fiery, detached quality that is right on the mark for a lost young man. He has an innocent bounce in the first half that evolves into a terrified pace in the second.

Less convincing is Rhoda Denny George as Adele Parker. She is either completely furious or completely traumatized. Her physical tension and strained voice grow wearisome — we know she is always a bummer, again and again, so we eventually tune her out. She telegraphs her emotions rather than living them.

Eric Davenport has a tough job with the role of Theo, the angry son who is the idealistic believer.

Eric handles his explosions with ease, but for much of the play, he is on the same level — always about to bite someone's head off. He and Adele are always angry, never showing any love for anyone or anything.

Malcolm Smith (left) gives a stellar performance as Russell Parker in 'Ceremonies in Dark Old Men'

His posture becomes tiresome. It is up to the actors and the director to find the light within the obvious dark, or in other words, play the comedy — the tragedy will play itself.

The direction (by Winston Williams) in the first two-thirds of the play is smooth, but we run into pacing problems in the third act.

Each character inevitably comes to a realization but the pacing is so slow in the final third that it becomes hard to hear. The action comes to a virtual standstill, and the director loses his audience.

Another awkward directorial choice is when the actors face straight out during some of their speeches, turning them into proclamations of ideas, instead of heartfelt passions.

This play is straight realism and to keep us enthralled, we must see the actors enthralled with each other, not with the footlights.

The set and the costume both present problems. The set is a two-room box with a terrific tile floor in the barbershop.

But the "back room" that is off to the side doesn't fit the aesthetic whole — not that the Parkers live in a manicured building, but the two rooms seem completely disconnected.

The small bedroom has a wooden-looking refrigerator in the corner. Why?

And, unfortunately, the walls wobble when someone comes through the door, making surprise entrances impossible and dramatic exits a bit comic.

The costumes are problematic for other reasons. Since the time frame of the play is not mentioned in the program, we look to the visuals to give us clues. The hair styles and clothes of the brothers have a distinctly modern look, but the others wear a mish-mash of styles.

Moreover, when Bobby tells Theo "you look pretty bad" we see a young man dressed in shiny penny loafers and a tennis-club sweater. Adele's high heels look uncomfortable and awkward and even the shoes don't tell us the time period.

This might sound overly picky, but details can make theatre plausible. I was constantly distracted by talking in the lobby (or in the booth, or somewhere).

And why do audiences laugh when the drama turns to violence? Is it because we didn't get the chance to laugh earlier, or is it actually amusing to see people physically or verbally abused? You got me.

Bathroom remodeling can be expensive, time consuming and very inconvenient. But now there is an easy and affordable method that can save not only time and money, but your sanity as well.

BATHCREST, the nation's leading porcelain resurfacing ex-counties, says that "The option is now available for resurfacing your bathroom for whatever reason. If you are just tired of the color or if the surfaces are deteriorating or maybe (there's) even a major mildew problem, our resurfacing can bring beauty and durable surface for many years. Glazecote is an innovative new process, a synthetic porcelain finish that will bond to porcelain, china, ceramic tile, cast iron, stamped steel, cultured marble and fiberglass. Bathcrest has set the industry standard. Glazecote exceeds many requirements of the U.S. Department of Commerce, which sets standards for manufacture of new bathtubs.

The resurfacing can be done at a fraction of the cost of replacing fixtures, and is done in a matter of hours with the fixtures in place.

Glazecote synthetic porcelain finishes are available in a full range of decorator colors matching and contrasting to the products of American Standard, Kohler, Elger and other manufacturers, and Bathcrest can also custom color match from your own sample or imagination.

Also available through David Chin's Bathcrest operation is a full line of brass bathroom fixtures, tub enclosures and shower doors. He also does chip repair work.

Skilled labor, quality of life draw tech companies

City News
Results of a recent survey indicate that technology companies located in the East Bay were attracted to the locale by the quality of life, the availability of skilled labor, and the proximity to universities.
The communities of Fremont and Hayward have particularly benefited from the so-called "Silicon Valley creep" because of the proximity to the better known South Bay technology community.
The survey, conducted by the Arthur Young company, found that high technology has become an important part of the economy of the East Bay with some 500 companies located in Alameda, Contra Costa and southern Solano counties — most of them along the Interstate Highway 880 corridor.

The greatest number of companies are located in Fremont, followed by Berkeley, Hayward and Oakland. While Fremont is considered to be attractive because of its pro-business climate, some survey respondents said their companies may relocate because of the city's growing traffic congestion.
The survey shows that future relocations and expansion of high tech in the region will favor Pleasanton and San Ramon.
The industries surveyed deal with the technologies of computers and peripherals, biotechnology and equipment instrumentation. They expect to grow an average of 24 percent a year for the next three years.

'The industries surveyed deal with the technologies of computers and peripherals, biotechnology and equipment instrumentation. They expect to grow an average of 24 percent a year for the next three years'

Executive officers of the companies, in responding to the survey, said the continued growth of technology in the region depends on a good commute and affordable housing for workers, both of which are eroding.
Of the 500 companies surveyed, 83 percent are headquartered in the East Bay and 17 percent are branches of companies headquartered elsewhere. Twenty-eight percent of the companies are in the software business.
While only 9 percent are working in the burgeoning field of biotechnology, these biotech companies tend to be relatively large, many with more than 100 employees. It was observed that Alameda and Emeryville have mastered a number of developments — such as Marina Village and Harbor Bay — which have attracted both biotech and other high tech companies.

Since the East Bay lacks name recognition as a high-tech center, Arthur Young recommends that public-private partnerships be set up in each community to project the area's attributes.
Developers are advised to pair up with venture capital firms to get started by taking stock options and warrants in lieu of rents. They are also advised to form partnerships with venture capital firms and invest in start-up businesses by providing rent concessions.

Arthur Young also advises developers to design parks that center around high tech anchor tenants and to encourage related supporting technology companies to locate nearby. Business parks — such as the Hacienda Business Park in Pleasanton and Ardenwood in Fremont — are seen as centers that can provide the critical mass of skilled labor.
Arthur Young's High Technology Group provides financial and consulting services to technology companies nationwide. Arthur Young also represents major real estate developers.

citizens of Albany are doing enough about this. If they're (EBMUD) not going to kick in any money then let's keep the cost down and stretch it out over 25 years."

In response, Councilmember Thelma Rubin said, "The integrity of the sewer is the one thing that makes all our lives livable. You say that 15 percent (last year's rate) is enough but the only amount that is enough is the amount it will take to fix our sewers in a reasonable amount of time. I think 20 years is a reasonable amount of time."

Mayor Henry Kruse advised the council that building sewers is the responsibility of the city and, he added, "If we are polluting the bay, and I think it's evident we are, we ought to stop it."

Albany is not the only city facing major sewer renovations under the Water Quality Board rehabilitation facility will lower property values and further aggravate what they see as an existing parking and traffic problem.

"(The street) has speeding cars which go over an essentially blind hill, made worse by two-sided street parking and house construction," Richardson said. "This new facility is likely to increase the traffic, compound the parking problem and increase the danger on Harner Street."

Budlong countered that only one "satellite" resident owns a car.

Opponents said recovering addicts living in the house may return to drugs and create "significant problems" for the neighborhood.

"We all know that a drug addict, like an alcoholic, is always a drug addict," Richardson said. "The likelihood of illegal activities occurring at this facility is very high."

Richardson said the group also is concerned about lack of supervision at the halfway house.

"We understand that there is no one on site, trained or licensed personnel and that supervision there is negligible," she said.

According to Budlong however, residents of the house have a midnight curfew, are checked on twice a night and are frequently given urine tests to check for drugs.

If a resident tests positive, "he certainly wouldn't be allowed to continue (living) in a satellite house," Budlong said.

All four of the halfway house residents have been in the pro-

Feather River Camp taking reservations

Oakland Feather River Vacation Camp is accepting reservations for its 66th summer season, which runs from July 1 through August 20 in the Plumas National Forest near Quincy.

Sponsored by the Oakland Office of Parks and Recreation, Feather River Vacation Camp offers families, groups and individuals an affordable, scenic alternative to other summer plans. Campers can enjoy activities such as horseback riding, hiking, archery, volleyball, badminton, horseshoes, swimming, fishing, dancing, or simply relaxing in one of California's most historic mountain regions.

A fee of $100 to $120 per adult camper provides four night's accommodations in floored tents or cabins, and three hearty meals served in a central dining hall.

Feather River Camp is just a short drive from Reno and Lake Tahoe. Lake Alanor, Buck's Lake, Oroville Dam, historic communities of Rich Bar and Johnsville, and a restored gold ore stamp mill are other destinations for day trips. Golf courses and tennis courts are also nearby.

The 1989 season kicks off with Fourth of July Week (July 1 through July 8), an annual event featuring barbecues, organized games and entertainment.

Feather River Family Vacation Camp is owned and operated by the City of Oakland, and open to the general public. It is located about 200 miles, or a five-hour drive, from the Oakland-San Francisco area.

Early registration is encouraged. Reservations are accepted weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Oakland Office of Parks and Recreation, 1520 Lakeside Drive, Oakland, CA 94612. Call 273-3896 for information.

orders. According to City Administrator Steven Salomon similar projects are under way in Berkeley, El Cerrito, Oakland and most other cities serviced by EBMUD sewage treatment plant. He said EBMUD customers in those cities face similar or even greater rate increases.

"EBMUD treats the sewage for all of these cities," Salomon explained. "During the winter the plant gets overloaded so they end up having to release raw sewage into the bay." This situation is what prompted the Water Quality Control Board's order, he said.

Salomon said sewer service charges appear on customers' EBMUD bills and rate increases will vary depending on the type of building or business. The rates "attempt to reflect the use of the sewer system," he said.

For example, customers living in a single-family home will pay $9.10 per month next year, up from the current $7.75 rate. Commercial rates are substantially higher.

Salomon warned that rates may increase next year as well, depending on whether or not construction costs increase. He added, however, EBMUD customers in Albany are still paying less than customers in other affected cities. For example, Berkeley customers pay $12.86 for a single-family dwelling and in Piedmont the rate is $16.50.

In addition to approving the sewer service rate hike the council also voted to adopt a new five-year capital improvements program that allocates revenues for the $1.5 million community center and library project as well as for street and sewer system repairs and improvements.

Albany Little League

Cubs battle Dodgers for championship title

Don August

ALBANY — The Albany major league division is down to two teams in the championship series. The late running Cubs made a runaway in the second game, running off to a 9-1 record in the first half winning game. The Cubs' gallant second half effort was not enough to overcome the Dodgers' late surge. They sailed through the game after game.

Sparked by the pitching of Ed Preisler and the hitting of Jim Meyers, the Cubs held off the Pirates and after eight innings won 4-3 winners.

Earlier in the week the Cards won their fifth straight, knocking the Dodgers out of contention for a sweep of the season with a 5-3 win. Again Smith and Cline provided offensive punch while Szwaneke and Jeff Garvarini pitched the victory.

Before getting the win, the Cards had to survive a bases-loaded bottom of the sixth for the Dodgers when, with one out, Nate Gathegi lined one back at Gargarini who made the self-defense catch. With two outs, Paul Vasequez ran a ways to flag down a Tom Beckwith fly to end it.

The Braves broke their eight-game losing streak in the second half by winning their final two games in high scoring fashion.

They scored 11 runs in the first two innings and held on to beat the Giants 11-6. Seth Zweben, Steven Souza, Josh "The Flash" making his first starts of the year on the mound, threw six innings after falling behind early 2-0. Thanks to Rutherford, who had three runs batted in, including the game winner, Nickelson was the winner. For the Cardinals Ben Smith led the way going 2-3 and Jake Cline (a double and two runs batted in) helped in a losing cause. "Big" Supiya had his first hit of the year in his last game, earning honors as do pitchers Rich Szwaneke and Brad Hoffman for a combined effort.

Flushman, Phoebe Seaton and Dominic "Pee Wee" Palazzolo all had one hit. Jason Caredio had a pair to spark the Braves. For the Giants Andre Rabb-Patterson had three hits and Danny Gipsman had two hits and two runs batted in. Jeremy Cohen pitched four innings of shut-out baseball.

The Braves turned to the Pirates and scored a bundle in the sixth inning for the victory. With neither team having a hit going into the sixth, the Braves exploded on hits by Aubrey Holmes (inside the park homer), Micah Perez and Dominic Palazzolo. Steven Souza pitched three innings of no-hit baseball. Chase Choate blocked the plate effectively twice, not allowing runs to score. Josh Flushman pitched a strong sixth inning to close out the victory.

The Dodgers then closed out their second half by beating the Giants 1-0 in an eight man pitchers' duel. With Dodgers throwing three men at the Giants and the Giants countering with five pitchers of their own, only a fifth-inning single by Kyl Fleming, scoring Felipe Parker, got the job done. Roshan Jain went 2-2 for the Giants and Fleming went 2-2 for the Dodgers.

The Dodgers and Cubs go at it this week. The final game is tomorrow night unless a sweep by either team takes place.

Stars dunk Seals in rookie league

Victory puts team on top in newly-formed league

Don August

ALBANY — In a game for the top spot in the newly-formed rookie league, the Stars defeated the Seals 8-7 in a thrilling battle of the league's top two teams.

Coming in the Stars' 10-5 record was one better than that of the Seals at 9-6. For the Stars the game was to clinch the top spot entering the play-off tournament.

It was a match-up of Oliver Botello and Themius Carabas on the mound for their respective teams. Instead of a pitchers' duel, a wide-open game took place.

The Stars jumped right to a 2-0 lead in the first when lead-off singles by Matt Bramwell and Ryan Holt gave the Stars a hot start. Holt scored when Petit's grounder was thrown away at the plate, giving the Stars the advantage.

The Seals then fought back with three runs in the second with Derek Palmer earning a two-run single. Palmer then got picked off first but stayed in the rundown long enough for the third run to score and, after two, it was 3-2 Seals.

Themius Carabas scored in the third, extending the Seal lead to 4-1, but the Stars came back in their half of the third. An RBI ground out by Ben Wells and a run-scoring single by Josh Greenblatt keyed a three-run third that gave the Stars a lead back of 5-4.

Ryan Holt then had his second hit of the day scoring Deach Chapin-Rienzo and the Stars' lead was upped to 6-4. In the sixth the Seals took the lead back again.

Sam Dorman and Andre Botello each had a run-scoring base hit while the Seals were scoring three runs. When Petit got out of the inning the Seals had built a 7-6 lead.

Needing a run in the sixth to tie it, the Stars saw their key man Holt lead off, reaching via an error, and the Stars were in business. Holt was balked to second by Carabas, stole third and scored on Jacob Zim's fly to medium deep left field, tying the game at seven.

It was now Petit's turn to try to hold down his opponents but Jonathon Seaton walked to lead off. After stealing second and third, he was thrown out at the plate by third baseman Chapin-Rienzo after he fielded a shot hit by Duggan Yazzie.

The game then came down to the bottom of the seventh when Josh Cline walked with one out for the Stars. He stole second and third and came in to score when Chapin-Rienzo's grounder went through the third baseman's legs, sending the Stars home winners.

The victory put them two games ahead with one left to play before the four team tourney begins.

Ryan Holt went 2-for-4 for the Stars, scoring three times while for the Seals, Palmer, Dorman and Botello had the only three hits. Petit and Carabas each went the distance for their teams.

Knockout performance at Bowl

ALBANY — Bowling in the Golden Gate Fields turf league at Albany Bowl, Steve Mahrt upped his own league series record when he easily surpassed his 171 average in putting together a terrific 222-267-206-695! This outstanding performance barely edged Michael Haynes in a battle for men's honors as Haynes fired a sparkling 253-224-200-677 in the Jubilee 4's, far above his 153 average and a new league mark in the summer's largest league.

Incomparable Delcia Young, Albany's premier kegler, topped the women's hit parade when she posted a big 211-186-245-642 in the 850 Match Point. Included in other noteworthy efforts were Asta Dingman 222-577, Darlene Dixon 203-576 and Linda James 202-564.

The seniors were led by Kingsley Berndt, who recorded a 211-603, and Joe Bertotti, who shot a 580 in the SIRS league. Armando Gonzalez came up with a four game 207-779 total to lead the juniors.

In addition to Delcia Young's 642, the highly competitive 850 Match Point produced several other big scores. Stephen Cincera rolled 258-658, Bob Blank, Jr., 238-653, Ray Douglas 229-646, Bob Blank, Sr., 247-636, Bill Bransford 248-629, Raymond Alford 245-621, Dwight Hammons 216-617, Michael Hilliard 258-609 and Jeff Ho 202-603. Bill Beltz headed the 535 Scratch Trio with 206-193-225-246-870.

Other league highs were Thomas Boutte 243-658 and David Austin 234-234-637 in the Summer Sleepers; John Bruno 209-600 and Jeff Williams 203-594 in the Jubilee 4's; Godfrey Smith 229-593 in the International Trio; Bout Washington 246-642, Tony Stout 211-206 and Paul Brenner 223-604 in the 700 Scratch 4's; Ato Logan 243-603 in the Merry Mixers.

Aron Fulwood 229-657 in the OPS; Anthony Striplin 227-602 in the Saturday KTT; Jim Brasel 231-645 in the VIP; Jim Brasel 217-606 and Alan Roach 230-596 in the Travelin' Taverners.

Albany kids earn gold medals in reading — 371 books in 7 weeks

ALBANY — Thirty students in Don Walker's first grade class at Marin Elementary School read 371 books in seven weeks to earn gold medals in reading at least 10 books in seven weeks. The students participated in "Partners in Excellence," a program coordinated and sponsored by World Book-Childcraft, Inc.

World Book's Partners in Excellence program has placed more than 36,000 sets of World Book Encyclopedias and 34,000 sets of Childcraft in schools and learning centers nationwide.

Adult beginner swimming, Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., Monday and Wednesday from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.; advanced beginner and intermediate, Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and Monday and Wednesday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Classes are from June 19 to July 28. Session II is from July 31 to Sept. 1.

Children's learn to swim classes are held every day for two weeks or once a week for 10 weeks on Saturday.

Sessions offered are: Session I from June 26 to July 7; Session II from July 10 to July 21; Session III from July 24 to Aug. 4; Session IV from Aug. 7 to Aug. 18; Session V from Aug. 21 to Sept. 1; Session VI from July 1 to Sept. 2, Saturdays. Classes meet for half an hour from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday classes meet from noon to 12:30 p.m. and from 12:30 to 1 p.m.

Parents and tots classes are offered for children 4 months to 4 years. Session I meets Monday and Wednesday from 10:30 to 11 a.m., June 26 to July 26; Session II, Monday and Wednesday from 10:30 to 11 a.m., July 31 to Aug. 30; Session III, Saturday 11 to 11:30 a.m. for children 4 months to 4 years and from 11:30 to noon for 3- and 4-year-olds.

The pool offers two new summer courses, basic water safety and emergency water safety. These Red Cross classes teach families water safety and accident prevention.

Basic water safety meets July 24 to Aug. 4 and Aug. 21 to Sept. 1, from 2 to 2:30 p.m. and Saturdays 12:30 to 1 p.m., July 1 to Sept. 2. Emergency water safety meets July 24 through Aug. 4 and Aug. 21 through Sept. 1 from 2:30 to 3 p.m.

Registration for all classes will continue until classes are filled. Enrollment is limited. Call the pool for more information at 526-7386. Schedules are available at the pool, 1311 Portland Ave., Albany.

Anti-Klan walk planned June 17

Many groups sponsor foot races of different kinds. In the Bay Area there is a Run and Walk Against the Ku Klux Klan. Hundreds of runners and striders will lace up their shoes to raise consciousness and funds to counter racist groups in California.

The race around Oakland's Lake Merritt on June 17, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Old Boathouse at 14th St. and Lakeside, features 5- and 10-kilometer fun runs and a 5-kilometer walk.

The run, benefiting educational work against Klan and Nazi groups, is the largest sporting event for a progressive, non-medical cause in the country.

Ku Klux Klan and Nazi skinhead violence plague the Bay Area, according to the run organizers, members of the John Brown Anti-Klan Committee.

All runners and walkers receive a T-shirt. For information call the John Brown Anti-Klan Committee at 330-5363.

New model for women workers

They may choose advancement or time to raise a family

By Susan Benson
Bay City News

Imagine a workplace where the potential for advancement of women managers is based on whether they are married to their families or their jobs.

Although many women shudder at the notion, such a two-track model was proposed in a recent Harvard Business Review article written by the president of a New York-based working women's advocacy group.

According to Catalyst President Felice N. Schwartz in her article "Management Women and the New Facts of Life," corporations should separate managerial women into two categories: those whose lives revolve around their careers and those requiring flexible schedules to accommodate children and family. The article ran in the Review's January-February issue.

Judith Kurtz, a staff attorney with San Francisco's Equal Rights Advocates, a public interest law group that specializes in sex discrimination issues in employment, said in an interview she'd like to see Schwartz's two-track proposal derailed.

"Instead of recognizing that the workplace should be created to accommodate all parents and their needs, she's trying to fit us all into the traditional male model of the workplace — which is a place where family doesn't belong," she explained.

The article also suggests that women in management are more costly to the corporations that employ them. Kurtz said she had never seen any evidence to support that idea.

While it may be true that Schwartz's proposal reflects what already exists in many corporations, Kurtz said this is something to be battled, not institutionalized.

"If you enshrine the two-tier system, then that vision of the present becomes a vision of the future," she added.

If businesses think women managers with families bring less to the job, Kurtz said they ought to think again.

"MY experience with women is that they are extremely dedicated and hard workers," she said. "Women managers are so concerned with being seen as less productive because of motherhood that they bend over backwards to pull their weight as workers."

Kurtz suggested managerial men with family obligations may also feel pressure to make a choice between family and advancement on the job.

County health department is honored

The Contra Costa County Health Services Department Prevention Program was recently proclaimed winner of the 1988 Program Excellence Award given by the Society for Public Health Education. The award recognizes outstanding and distinguished contributions to the practice of health education. Four programs received recognition nationally.

The Prevention Program, established in 1982, joins with community agencies in a broad, county-wide integration of resources to inform, educate and empower the public. The program focuses on high risk areas such as public health, alcohol and drug abuse prevention, mental health, medical care and environmental health issues.

The program also was recognized for its work by receipt of the 1986 National Health Promotion Award from the US Department of Health and Human Services.

Major projects of the program include the Teen Violence Prevention Project to reduce rape, suicide and fighting among adolescents in Contra Costa County; the Safer Travel project which encourages the use of seat belts and motorcycle helmets and car safety. The program has also worked on combatting toxic waste in the county; implementing the county's smoking ordinance; and the prevention of cancer, hunger and unemployment.

Anyone wishing more information about the program or to see a 25-minute video, Beyond Brochures, call Karen Hall at 646-6511.

"It's a very dangerous concept to be promoting," she added. "It acts as a negative incentive for men to get more involved with their families."

Carol and Dan Orsborne, both 41, were stressed-out public relations executives when they decided to scale back work four years ago with the dual purpose of spending more time with their family and spending time on "personal growth."

Orsborne said she and Dan formerly put in 60 to 70 hour weeks at The Orsborne Group, a San Francisco public relations company they founded 20 years ago. Today she said she works no more than 20 hours a week. Dan, she admitted, creeps up toward 30 hours.

Does she think separating women with family commitments from those without is a good model for the workplace?

"It's the right idea, but the wrong conclusion," she explained. "And it doesn't go far enough in including men with families."

She added she hasn't seen any evidence that those who put family first don't make significant enough on-the-job contributions.

Author of Enough is Enough, a book about cutting loose from work addiction and exploding the myth of having it all, Orsborne said she's spent a lot of time studying people who scale back the role the office plays in their lives.

"Many are types who bring a whole person to the job," she said. By Orsborne's definition, a whole person performs tasks with more energy, enthusiasm and creativity than the "Johnny One Note" who may be wedded to career but has handicapped personal development by living, breathing and eating work.

Orsborne said while such an employee may be the boss-pleaser who puts in long hours and many corporations are willing to exploit such a person, there are better choices for both worker and employer.

For the Orsbornes, cutting back on office hours hasn't cut into company profits.

"We have the bottom line to prove it," she said. "And we have creativity, clarity and enthusiasm on the job. When we're there, we're really there."

East, West mesh in Mitsubishi's Eclipse

Sports coupe debuts with all wheel drive system

Mitsubishi's new sports coupe, the Eclipse, has just taken another leap into the future with an all-wheel drive version of its hot sports coupe.

The Eclipse is the result of Chrysler and Mitsubishi Asian-American connections and, since its introduction at the beginning of this year, the two-wheel drive Eclipse has outsold Mitsubishi's original sales projections.

Under the banner of Diamond Star Motors, the two companies have contributed to the process of building the twin Mitsubishi Eclipse and the Plymouth Laser.

The new All-Wheel Drive version, termed the AWD, is available with both the coupe and sedan. The system adds 300 horsepower to the coupe's overall power, but seems to make little difference to its outstanding acceleration with the 200-horsepower twin cam, four-cylinder engine.

The system also makes no difference to the coupe's CD figures, which run between 0.29 and 0.33, depending upon the model. As such, the automobile continues to deliver a quiet ride through the air with low exterior wind penetration.

The Eclipse uses a shortened Mitsubishi Galant platform as the base of the front-wheel drive coupe which, for both marques, has been made available in four different trim levels — Standard, GS DOHC and GS DOHC Turbo, plus the new GSX AWD.

Aimed at targets

The GSX AWD is aimed at three market niches: the sport car buff, the skier and the driver who has to contend with rain, mud and snow for part of the year.

Auto Scene

David Fetherston

For all three who want a sporty little coupe, the AWD Eclipse is right in the ball park on nearly every facet of its making.

The four-cylinder crossways mounted motor has all the latest high performance tricks, including twin cams, four valves per cylinder, fuel injection and a turbo.

All this adds up to around 200 horsepower, which means that the Eclipse pulls well right through the range to the red line to 7000 rpm.

On the blacktop, this power and the all-wheel drive system add up to a very quick and adhesive automobile, with a 14 to 1 power-to-weight ratio, which is slightly better than a stock Corvette.

I drove the AWD Eclipse in Southern California last week and found it to be a "fireball" to drive. Like the Audi Quattro, it is a "Crazy Glue" car. Around town it will just putter about without any fuss.

It feels no different from the front-wheel drive version until you need to stand on the throttle.

Then, instead of lifting the front slightly and racing off, the AWD motors forward without much weight transfer or tire spin. If you are sports oriented, then a country two-lane is a perfect place to stretch its legs.

You don't have to go racing off trying to imitate Mario Andretti at Indy. The AWD Eclipse will cut a perfect line through turns that in a normal automobile need braking and a double downshift.

Just goes

It was designed for high performance driving, improved driver control and more adhesive handling on twisty roads. All of those it does with ease.

This increase in driver control is the result of an extensive rework of the already superb Eclipse suspension. The system has been designed to eliminate virtually all wheel spin and torque steer characteristics.

Mitsubishi has not forgotten creature comforts either. The company has managed to isolate the cabin from a fair amount of powertrain noise, and even the turbo under full throttle is not annoyingly loud.

The twin balance shafts do a great job of getting the vibration down and letting you do your intended business without the annoyance of the usual "shake, rattle and roar" that a hi-po four-cylinder engine produces.

The refined suspension package, which works so well on the new Galant, has found a suitable home under the Eclipse. Using conventional struts and sway bar up front, the rear suspension on the AWD version has been completely reworked.

The rear system is self-aligning and uses double wishbones with trailing arms and MacPherson struts.

It is designed to maintain accurate suspension geometry during acceleration, cornering and stopping.

The system offers better tire to road contact, as well as improved braking and steering response.

Does the job

The system is surprisingly simple but well designed and, as a result, the AWD can handle almost any road surface or interruption to its direction without much drama.

Surprisingly, it has virtually no four-wheel drive feel.

In fact, it gives you a great feeling of confidence as a driver. So to call the AWD Eclipse a "Japanese Quattro" is no broken promise.

Unlike the front-wheel drive version, which gets a slight case of the jitters on broken surfaces in corners, the AWD just cuts right over them.

The Active-ECS suspension package from the stunning Galant sedan, which uses a computer to generate suspension setting according to driver preference and road surface, is still not available on the Eclipse. It will apparently be made available on the 1991 model, along with ABS brakes.

All Eclipse models come with four-wheel discs and are ventilated up front, and even after blasting up and down a few Southern California canyons, they continue to do their duty without any sign of fatigue.

The powertrain has been upgraded five horsepower for the AWD version only.

This was achieved with a less restricted exhaust, which was redesigned because of the need to run a new tail shaft to the rear wheel for the AWD system.

Unlike the two-wheel drive version, which will depart from a standing start with the front tires screaming like a pair of scalded banshees, the AWD GSX Eclipse will hurl itself forward without as much as tire chirp.

Tire traction is cleanly turned into forward movement. Acceleration times for the GSX AWD version run around seven seconds for 0 to 60 mph, with the same stunning top speed of 143 mph as the two-wheel drive.

Inside, the AWD is virtually no different from the two-wheel drive. Its business-like layout has been well thought out.

There are no tacked on bits and pieces and all the controls and mechanicals function ergonomically.

The seating up front uses a pair of well upholstered high-back seats which not only look good but function fine.

On the really twisty stuff, they could do with a little extra side bolster, but apart from that, they are supportive and locate you well.

The contoured rear seats are for little folk only, preferably ones who can't walk yet, as the leg room rates close to minuscule. The rear seat zone is not a complete loss, however.

It folds down so you can carry a large amount of freight or furniture.

The Eclipse AWD runs like the wind and handles like someone just ran Crazy Glue down the blacktop. Its cute looks, quality and performance make it a great buy for $17,000, especially when almost all the options are included.

So if it's a delightful mix of good looks and super safe handling you want, then Mitsubishi's AWD GSX Eclipse is going to be very hard to beat.

REALTORS

1712 Palmera, Alameda
CALIFORNIA MEDITERRANEAN ESTATE. This fabulous Gold Coast estate with beautifully landscaped grounds on the lagoon is reminiscent of graceful garden parties of an earlier time. From the foyer you enter the living room and continue through French doors into the airy solarium. Large windows provide a wide view of the lawn, private patio and calm lagoon waters. The 4 bedrooms, each one special in its own way, 3 full baths, and maid's quarters make this home unique. BARBARA 521-2101, Harbor Bay RE 523-1144.

MARTHA SHIN

TOP PRODUCER

Martha Shin was recently honored by the Montclair Office of Grubb & Ellis Real Estate, Inc. as the 1988 Top Producer and Top Seller. She was also named the Top Seller in 1987. Martha has lived in Piedmont Pines since 1974 with her husband Frank and two daughters, Poonie & Joanne. Prior to becoming a Real Estate Agent, Martha worked for several years at the Montclair Branch of Bank of America. Eric Chalfour, the Montclair Manager, attributes Martha's success to her personal concern for her clients, her negotiating skills, and her hard work. Martha would like to thank her many satisfied clients who referred her to new clients during the past seven years, as well as the many friends, neighbors and former bank customers who have become clients. If you have a question about Real Estate, Call Martha at 339-8666 office or 531-8643 residence.
